

Complete live game of cricket via live game webhooks

The purpose of this page is to provide an example of a full game of cricket as told by sequential payloads from the live game webhooks. See Cricket live game webhooks - Sample payloads for an overview of the Cricket live game webhook events.

i Please note that the items below are not comprehensive of every single event that can take place in a game of cricket. The examples below are representative of the more common events that can occur. Also note that many events that are quite simple e.g. scoring runs are not often repeated below and thus, the final result of the game will be different to a typical game.

Complete live game

The payloads below demonstrate a complete game of cricket that is scored electronically. The webhook utilised for each payload below is noted next to the expand/collapse icon. Just below that is a brief summary of what transpired in the game to trigger the payload.

w There are currently issues with the live game scorecard payload when a bowler is changed during an over and when the strike batter changes. As such, these events have been left out of the payloads below. They will be added in once the issues are addressed.

▼ Live game scorecard: innings are ended early and scorecard is sent

This has been done here:

1. to demonstrate this is a possibility and
2. to abbreviate the game for the purposes of this document
